

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is directed to a method and apparatus for removing moisture from a test sample. A removable drying agent container having a plurality of drying agent particles is employed with a drying member so that the drying agent can be readily installed in and removed from the drying member.